NEXT: DEADPOOL & AGENT X! NUFF SAID!

DEAR DEADPOOL

Dear Deadpool,

I can't believe it—you take the time out from double-crossing world leaders to answer our mail, and nobody even writes to you? Well, I hope I can make up for last month by sending salutations from a 17-year-old fan girl who rates your magnetism as second only to Nightcrawler (take that as you will).

Anyway, I hear you have a thing for numbered questions, so here goes nothing.

1. I've noticed more than a few iPod placements around the comic...what's on your playlist? Are there any particular tracks you like to take on a mission?

2. So we finally got to see what's in all those pouches when Nate yanked you up for a ticking off...why do you carry an action figure of yourself? Is it just for the ego trip or do all super heroes/villains carry them for the entertainment on long trips?

3. What's the craziest dream you've ever had while out cold? ...Or is that unprintable?
Stay stunnerific, mate.
- Rosa (all the way from Scotland)

Rosa from Scotland? That's funny. Do you wear a fur kilt and paint your face blue? I thought all Scots did that. And I'd like you to know, I don't have "a thing" for—

Oooh, numbered questions!

1. I believe iPods work best as tactical plastique explosives attached to the backsides of blind super heroes. I can never get my downloads to work properly. But last I checked, I had Thoroughly Modern Millie playing. Soundtrack is stuck in my head now...

2. Uhm... uh... well, it IS a lot of pouches... and sometimes, there's just some extra space... and some extra stuff lying around and... well, to tell you the truth, Rosa (as if you need me to tell you this), chicks really dig it when I whip out the old action figure...

3. Unprintable? I'm pretty sure it's legally unTHINKable...

Dear Deadpool,

I am quite frankly shocked and appalled that not one single fan had written into your letters column [in time for issue 34]. (Sorry, I guess that would also include me.) So I am making up for it now. Sincerely, welcome Mr. Brown for me, would you? So far his mixture of heavy emotion and frequent comedy is very good, beneficial for working on this title. I hope that he enjoys drawing you and Nate as much as I enjoy seeing it.

As for Mr. Nicieza, well, I really wondered where he was taking Nate with the President of Rumekestian storyline. For a time, I remember that Nathan hated the idea of being anyone's saviour or messiah, but still believed that he had a job to do, to safeguard the future from becoming his past. However, knowing what he knows, Cable is embracing that side of himself more, using the knowledge of the future to a great extent within the current stories. That is a tremendous use of the notion that knowledge is power. That makes Cable dangerous.

I realized that Mr. Nicieza is showing this to the extent that Cable is playing chess with the events and world leaders of the present, to craft the future he believes would be more beneficial to human- and mutantkind. The role I am guessing Domino is now going to take is to reflect upon whether Cable is doing exactly what he should with this power or creating his own kingdom and agenda. So I have to say I was wrong and I never should have doubted him. The storylines are great.

Okay, I know you love them, so numbered questions:

1. It would appear that Miss Merryweather has a soft spot for our boy Nate, so we'd see a Domino Irene catfight on the horizon and who do you think would win?

2. As I am British I wondered, who is your favourite Spice Girl?

3. I noticed last issue you carry an action figure of yourself, around with your equipment. Does that mean you play with yourself on long missions and when you are bored?

Thanks for your time and by the way it's not just Cable that has some insight into the future, I've seen what's coming. I hope you have some Band-Aids handy, I think Your in for a whoopin'.
Yours faithfully,
Jason Bailey

Blah, Blah, Blah Cable, Blah Blah Blah, Domino, Blah, Blah, Blah More Cable – ooh, numbered questions!

1. We fully planned to have a rip-snorin' catfight but Nicole said that would be demeaning to both characters and women in general. So out of respect for her, we're gonna try to do it while she's on vacation.

2. The anorexic one.

3. Uhm... yes...

And by the way Jason, maybe OUR English isn't as proper as yours, but it's "You're" as in "You Are" and "Whoopin'" as in "Whooping" or "To Whoop."

Dear Deadpool,

After reading the lack of a letter column in issue 34 I must say that I was shocked and appalled. Where is the support? Where is the love? I feel ill. Here is my little bit of compensation for those that didn't feel the urge to shower you with praise (for shame). Below are numbered questions:

1. What was the deal with you actually wanting a job with S.H.I.E.L.D.? Badges are fun and shiny, but seriously, YOU working for the authorities? Since when?

2. When are you going to get your own Marvel MAX mini-series?

3. Your shooting Nate in the back of the head was funny. (More of a statement, but whatever.)

4. Cable and Domino hooking up at the end of # 34 (my, my)... any thoughts? I'm getting a flashback to the days when you used to work for Mr. Tolliver, and Nate and Dom had that whole X-Force thing goin' on.

5. There is no question five.

Here's to the Merc With a Mouth! (Whose book was the only comic I purchased in the late 90s. You remember, eh?)

Owen

1. Freelance mercs, baby, we play for whoever pays. Technically, it wasn't S.H.I.E.L.D., but a dummy company for a front company for a guy who knew a guy who used to work for S.H.I.E.L.D. that was cutting the check.

2. Yeah, they barely let me get away with what I do and say in this book, can you imagine how fast they'd guillotine Nicieza if he were writing me in a MAX book?

3. In the form of a question, it could be, "Was your shooting of Nate in the back of his head funny?" And my answer would be: Yes.

4. Our thighs aren't nearly big enough now, but I can see the wavelength you're on. (Notice the spelling there, Jason...)

5. If you had one, Owen, the answer undoubtedly would have been, "I won't go there if Bob Barker was there first."

NEXT ISSUE: Jumpin' Jehosaphats, am I really stuck teeny-tiny size? Will this help or hinder my love life? And what's the dilly-o with AGENT X? Is that #@!% so-and-so comin' back to MY book again? And what – he needs my help? As if! Give me one good reason why I should help him! No, better yet... give me four good reasons...
